Faculty Senate demands pay increases

By Lenore Sobota
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The SIU Faculty Senate passed a resolution Tuesday demanding "that the salary increases previously established be made effective as of July 1" and be paid for as many months as possible.

An average increase of 9.6 per cent had been planned for SIU faculty, staff and civil service employees, but these raises have been postponed pending action by Gov. Daniel Walker on SIU's $108.7 million appropriations bill.

David Kenney of the Faculty Senate Budget Committee said the senate's resolution, which will be presented to the SIU Board of Trustees on Thursday, offers the best alternative for dealing with the proposed budget cutback.

"Dollars would begin to flow into the pockets of faculty and staff sooner and the salary base would be elevated (under this plan)," Kenney said.

Kenney also said money may be found to pay for the raises for the full 12-month period and that the resolution provides "the maximum of political pressure."

"This is a political matter of very great importance and the faculty and staff should approach it in that manner," he said.

Kenney said the money for the increases would probably run out "around March," just before the primary elections, which could hurt Walker's reelection bid, if raises were suspended at that time.

Faculty Senate President Herbert Donow said, "We really don't know what's going to happen ... We don't know the nature of the cuts Walker is going to make. All of this is done on the particular premise that he will make a bottom line cut."

If Walker makes a bottom line cut, rather than a line-by-line reduction, the University could use its own discretion in distributing the effects of the cutback.

Much of the debate on the resolution centered on the use of the word "demand" in the resolution.

Several members felt the words "recommend" or "strongly urges" should be substituted, but Kenney objected.

"Demand is a perfectly legitimate and respectable posture... Last month, this group did recommend and it did not do a thing. You could throw a pebble in the Grand Canyon and get a louder echo than we did last month," Kenney said.

"Maybe we need to hit the Board over the head with a two-by-four. If that word 'demand' will act as a two-by-four, then let's do it," Kenney commented.

The motion passed as originally worded by a vote of 14 to 4 with one abstention.

In other action, the Faculty Senate endorsed a recommendation from their Undergraduate Education Policy Committee to support the elimination of the SIU Textbook Rental Program, which is scheduled for consideration by the Board Thursday.

The committee will continue working on the problem of insuring the "students' interests are served in purchase and resale of books."

Members of the committee had voiced concern that frequent change over in textbooks, or instructors requiring several books in one course, could cause increased financial problems for students if the Textbook Rental Program is discontinued.

The Faculty Senate has sent a letter to SIU President Warren Brandt requesting further information on the position of vice president for fiscal affairs before they nominate members to the search committee being formed to fill that vacancy.

The Faculty Senate's letter stated that in the absence of information on the specifications of the position and the makeup of the search committee, they could not act responsibly in naming representatives to that committee.

Ambulance service on county agenda

By Pat Corcoran
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Plans for a county-wide ambulance service provided by SIU Health Service will be discussed at the Jackson County Board meeting Wednesday in the courthouse.

The regular meeting begins at 10 a.m., but the ambulance contract is slated for the afternoon session, according to the board's agenda.

In a report to the county board of supervisors, Hazel LeFevre, health and safety committee chairwoman, said she has been discussing possibly using SIU's Health Service for emergency ambulances on a county-wide basis. SIU currently provides ambulance service for the eastern part of the county and for the city of Carbondale.

Western Jackson County has been without contracted ambulance service since the former contract with Robert's Funeral home of Murphysboro expired in May. Roberts had also provided service for Murphysboro which members of Murphysboro's fire and police departments now provide.

Samuel McVay, Health Service director, said no definite proposals have been made but he will present the SIU proposal to the county board.

Providing services for the western area would require the purchasing of two additional ambulances and stationing them in the Murphysboro area, McVay said.

SIU must not compete unfairly with private enterprise in providing ambulance service but if no other ambulances are available, the university will consider aiding the county, McVay said.

In other action, the county board will consider amending the hours taverns under county jurisdiction are allowed to operate. The proposed amendment will allow the taverns to open at noon on Sunday instead of 1 p.m. as previously allowed.

Final approval is expected in the county's contract for sanitary landfill service including the city of Carbondale in the county landfill.

Liberal arts graduates find jobs

This is the first of two articles dealing with prospects for liberal arts graduates. Today: A study by the SIU College of Liberal Arts shows its graduates have done well despite the depressed job market. Tomorrow: A liberal arts education is for living, not just for working, say SIU liberal arts educators.

By Jan Wallace
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Every year, thousands of college graduates must make the adjustment from the security of college life to the world of work. Since unemployment is up to 8 per cent now, the problem of finding a job after graduation appears more serious than ever before.

Liberal arts graduates in particular have been described as more "disadvantaged" when it comes to getting jobs, according to Michael Walsh, researcher in the College of Liberal Arts.

Walsh said liberal arts graduates are thought to be doomed in the job market from the very start because of a lack of "salable skills."

Walsh says this misconception has

Walsh said that since it takes about two years for graduates to really find a job they're satisfied with, he decided to study those graduates who had been out of school for two years. By that time, he explained, graduates have had sufficient time to reach employment stability.

Walsh added that he wanted current students to be able to identify with his study. Since the class being studied graduated in 1972, there would be a resemblance between those grads and the students in school now.

Consequently, a follow-up study of SIU liberal arts graduates of 1972 was undertaken in November, 1974. The report was recently released.

The report reveals a situation much different from the one commonly depicted.

News Roundup

Ford officially announces candidacy

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford, pledging never to neglect his official duties and promising "an open and aboveboard campaign," officially announced his candidacy Tuesday for the presidency in 1976.

The only chief executive ever to move into the White House without winning a national election, Ford said he acted "with the strong support of my family and my friends."

This statement seemed designed to dispel once and for all speculation his resolve to make the race might hinge on the health of his wife, Betty, who underwent breast cancer surgery last fall. Mrs. Ford is reported to have made an excellent recovery.

Mrs. Ford listened to the announcement over a telephone circuit in the White House family quarters and was quoted by an aide as saying:

"I was not at all surprised. I'm happy that the time has come and the air is clear as to intentions."

Soviet deal report boosts grain sale

(AP)—Frenzied trading of grain futures was touched off Tuesday by reports of new Soviet-American deals involving a little more than a third of the wheat, corn and other grains sold to the Russians in a controversial transaction exactly three years ago.

The reports, first published in two London newspapers, came as the government prepared to issue a new review on U.S. farm exports.

On the Chicago Board of Trade where dealers buy and sell contracts for future delivery, often providing an indication of trends in coming months, prices rose as much as they could, then dropped as traders cashed in for quick profits.

It was not known how much of any particular type of grain was involved in the alleged sales, but the total would represent a relatively small fraction of the 1975 harvests.

Richard E. Bell, a deputy assistant secretary of agriculture, said he was aware of the reports by the Times of London and the Financial Times involving the grain sales, but could not confirm them. He noted that U.S. exporters are only required to report sales of 100,000 tons or more within 24 hours after a deal is completed.

Arson suspect arrested in Portland

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—Police arrested a 61-year-old skid row resident Tuesday on murder and arson charges in the wake of a fire that ripped through a rundown hotel, leaving 8 persons dead and 25 injured.

Eight of the injured were listed in critical condition.

Many of the bodies were found in the dimly lit hallways where occupants fell trying to reach a window or stairway and escape the three-story, brick Pomona Hotel.

Hotel residents said most of some 100 cubicle-like rooms in the building were occupied when the fire broke out about 11 p.m. Monday. Most of the victims succumbed from smoke inhalation and the heat, which fire officials said reached 1,000 degrees on the upper floor.

Pay raises demanded by Senate

Last April, the Faculty Senate passed a set of guidelines regarding faculty involvement on committees. Donow said one of his first mistakes as president was not following those guidelines in appointing several search committee members shortly after his election. He said he "caught that mistake that second time around."

Donow told the Faculty Senate he has received no response from Brandt regarding the letter.

Brandt said Monday, "The Faculty Senate has chosen not to nominate anyone to the search committee."

Donow said the letter "clearly stated" the Faculty Senate was pleased to be asked to participate in the search and could not be considered as a refusal unless Brandt decided not to furnish the information requested.

Brandt was unavailable for comment Tuesday.

Lesson to U.S. in India affair

Recent political developments in India should cause Americans to re-evaluate our own foreign policy.

Since its independence, India has served as a paragon of independence and neutrality in a part of the world where ideologies are polarized and alliances strong. It has repeatedly refused the traditional military pact offered by the Soviet Union and United States, preferring food and economic aid.

The Indian government has operated in the mold fashioned by English colonialists, maintaining one of the most democratic forms of government existing on the planet.

The recent refusal of Prime Minister Indira Gandhi to resign and her subsequent orders to temporarily rescind major constitutional rights can have an even larger effect on the image of the United States than the recent fall of Indochina.

In the recent years, a number of Indians have been adopting a Soviet ideology through their understanding of socialism, their common fear of the Chinese, and their mistrust in an economic system that has failed to provide them with the self-sufficiency to tackle the perennial problems of drought, famine, and a failing economic base.

Anand Singh, a professor of economics and leader in the Communist party in Amritsar, Punjab, India, characterized what he said were the impressions left by the two leading powers on the Indian people.

"When America gives India aid, they make sure everybody knows where it comes from. They give us whole tractors and other finished products.

"But the Soviet Union sends down advisors who help our people build factories so we can build our own tractors. Do you see the difference? When we need a tractor fixed, we would have to keep coming back to the Americans for parts and somebody to repair it. That is not helping us be self-sufficient," he said.

Obviously, Singh's explanation is a simplistic generalization. But it is also obvious that America has put a lower emphasis on its responsibility to help its neighbors than it has on policing them. Many economic problems now facing India are the same as those of pre-revolutionary China. What is the United States going to do about it?

Remember rights of non-smokers

Non-smokers have tolerated cigarette smokers for years. But today, things are different.

Non-smokers have won separate public facilities. The smoker is learning his right to imbibe tar and nicotine end at the non-smoker's nose.

Spending one day in a smoke-filled room is equivalent to smoking one pack of cigarettes, according to a study conducted by D.M. Cousins of Paris. Another investigation showed a single smoker, in four minutes, can raise the tar content of the air in a room 36 times the level considered safe under current National American Air Quality standards.

Even before the surgeon-general's 1972 warning against the dangers of carbon-monoxide in smoke-filled places, public concern about the effects of smoke on non-smokers was building.

In 1969, on an airline flight from Washington, D.C., to Minneapolis, Supreme Court Chief Justice Warren E. Burger counted 37 smokers. In disgust, he changed flights and registered a complaint with the Federal Aviation Administration. Today, many carriers provide smoking sections on planes.

Senators Frank Moss (D-Utah) and Mark Hatfield (D-Oregon) have sponsored bills curbing cigarette smoking in public buildings.

Ralph Nader, consumer advocate, has become active in the effort to ban smoking on airlines and buses and in hospital waiting rooms.

A regulatory bill seems inevitable, and smokers too are becoming more active and vocal. Many smokers claim their rights are being infringed. Some resent segregation on a bus or plane. Others state that if the government collects taxes on tobacco sales, and allows cigarette sales in public places, then smokers should be allowed to smoke wherever they desire.

None of these arguments stand against the non-smoker's claim to good health and clean air. True, the smoker has a right to smoke; but not the right to make others suffer because he wants to smoke.

Wallace, world diplomat

By Arthur Hoppe

"I don't have to go (to Europe). If I went over there, I'd see a bunch of buildings and bunch of grass and a bunch of trees. You can tell about as much about a country as you can by looking at motion pictures." -Governor Wallace in a lengthy interview on foreign affairs.

Q - Governor, what about the present state of Europe today?

A - Not worth a hill of beans. Pack-jammed with nothin' but spies, murderers, jool thieves and low-down preverts.

Q - Preverts?

A - You seen "Last Tango in Paris," boy?

Q - Do you consider the Russians a threat, sir?

A - Not much. They're mighty mean, no-good skunks. But they're none too bright. You take that Oscar Homolka. He don't never win the gal from us good Americans in the end.

Q - Would you recognize China, Governor?

A - Sure would. It's that place where all these poor starvin' folks is eatin' mud and grass. Seen "The Good Earth" when I was only in knee britches.

Q - And what about Vietnam, sir?

A - I'm not worried none. John Wayne proved he can lick a hundred of them Commies with one hand tied a-hind his back.

Q - But the Communists won in Vietnam.

A - They did? Shows how we never should of pulled ol' John out of there. He had 'em licked.

Q - Turning to Africa, Governor...

A - Nothin' but a bunch of natives dancin' around with spears and evil witch doctors causin' trouble. I say we ought to send more American Tarzans over there to restore lawn order.

Q - I think Tarzan was British, sir.

A - That so? Shows how we should've fought on their side in World War II. Then we would've licked them Russians and they wouldn't have sent their tanks rollin' into Holland.

Q - You mean Czechoslovakia, Governor.

A - Czechoslovakia, you say? Just shows how you can't trust them Commies. They're everywhere.

Q - Current tensions in the Middle East.

A - I'm an expert on that. Seen "Beau Geste," "Casablanca" and "Lawrence of Arabia." And you just can't trust them Arabs, neither.

Q - Then you'd support Israel?

A - I would, but I missed seeing "Exodus."

Q - Lastly, what are your views on Latin America?

A - A lot of right fine-looking ladies with bananas on their heads singin' "Chico-Chico." But their lazy men folks don't even shave, just ride around shootin' our fine American cowboys in the back. But my new Secretary of State'll fix 'em good—if ol' John'll take the job.

Q - Despite your vast knowledge of foreign affairs, would you, if elected President, be willing to make an around-the-world-good-will tour?

A - What! And likely fall off the edge?

Letter

Beware the budget

To the Daily Egyptian:

We learn that faculty, staff, and civil service, and presumably student, salary and wage increases are being "indefinitely suspended." (DE, 7-1) This in spite of the fact that the General Assembly passed the University's appropriation bill without reduction.

Alleged justification of such a suspension of pay increases is the possibility that the Governor may reduce the University appropriation by 6 per cent, or may impound up to 8 per cent. Such a possibility is no reason for the University administration not to go ahead with pay increases determined and announced weeks ago.

By putting pay increases in effect on July 1, as scheduled, several good and worthwhile things can be accomplished: Much needed dollars will soon flow into pockets left bare by inflation, salary and wage bases will be elevated to more acceptable though still not adequate levels (and such increases will thus be part of each individual's pay base for next year and all the years after), and maximum political pressure will be put on the Governor to do the least damage to the University's appropriation.

"But," the cautious administrator will ask, "What if the money will not last through the year?" Simple enough: Make every pay increase contingent upon adequate funding and susceptible to suspension when and if the money runs out. It is far better to have a 9 per cent pay increase for 9 months than a 6 per cent increase for 12, primarily because the higher rate then becomes part of the base for the following year and thereafter.

"It cannot be done," the cautious administrator (who has been buffeted much less by economic ill winds than have most of us) will probably say. Of course it can be done. All that is needed is a bit of courage and imagination on the part of Board and president.

The alternative is for a timid administration to roll over and play dead when it need not do so. Unfortunately that appears to be the course it has chosen.

Home Ec displays modern furniture

By Peggy Whiting
Student Writer

On display in the Home Economics Lounge is $20,000 worth of latest furniture fashions.

For more than two weeks, the renovated lounge has appeared ready for use. But Stanley Smith, dean of the College of Human Resources, said luxury lounging will not begin until the administration gives the okay.

The remodeled lounge offers an example of the "contemporary classics" of furnishings found in no place other than in Chicago's Merchandise Mart, said C.D. May, senior interior designer of the SIU Physical Plant.

May said famous designers such as George Nelson, Charles Eames, Warren Platner, Eero Saarinen, Harry Bertola and Herma Miller are the geniuses of the creations in the lounge. One of these creations is an S-shaped couch with 22 sections—"a fairly new concept" of molded foam over a wooden frame covered with stretch fabric. The couch covers about 90 feet of floor space.

"The largeness of the lounge is the reason for the S-shaped couch," May said. "It helps avoid the department store look and is a focal point for seating groups."

In the designer's arrangement with the orange couch are 31 various chairs, including the classic Eames lounge chair and the "coconut" chair. Chair colors include black, brown, gold, orange and ivory.

"Swivel chairs have been chosen because they allow movement without the temptation to physically move the pieces," May said. "This will help keep the overall look in tact."

"Most coverings are vinyl, leather, nylon—cleanable fabrics," he said. "The 17 tables are laminated plastic to limit the maintenance required."

Four cushioned benches, several couches and two buffets also are arranged on the dark brown and deep orange carpet.

Some of the old furnishings have been reused and may be recognized by visitors when the lounge is opened.

Participants will be taught from area craftsmen how to carve wood, make stuffed dolls and animals, and articles from natural materials such as cornhusks and pine cones.

Financed by the Illinois Department of Aging, the project is open only to persons who are at least 50 years old and are residents of Jackson, Williamson, Union or Johnson counties, said David Owen, coordinator of the project.

If the quota is not filled by residents of the four-county area, consideration will be given to persons outside those counties, he said.

Health insurance talk slated

A review of national health insurance proposals now before Congress will be presented by Dr. Allen Koplin, associate director for health services and local health administration of the Illinois Department of Public Health.

The public meeting is set for Wednesday, from 10 a.m. to noon, at Morris Library Auditorium.

National health insurance plans have been proposed by a wide range of organizations and are sponsored by congressmen and senators with support from medical, insurance, labor and consumer groups. Dr. Koplin will review the proposed bills and discuss the implications and probable effects on health practices.

Faulty door seal causes additional oven recalls

An additional 12,500 General Electric (GE) microwave ovens have been added to the 5,300 ovens already being inspected for radiation leakage, reported the Federal Drug Administration (FDA).

A faulty wire mesh seal around the oven door is involved in radiation leakage which exceeds Federal limits by as much as 10 times.

Ovens involved are GE and GE-Hoppoint microwave-thermal oven-range combination units called

"Cooking Centers" and "Ver-satronic."

FDA's Bureau of Radiological Health recommends that owners discontinue microwave cooking until the ovens can be examined by manufacturer.

GE reportedly has asked its dealers to compile names and addresses of owners of the additional 12,500 ovens, but the company expects that it may be mid-September before parts can be obtained to begin repairs on this group.

Buzbee slates local schedule

State Sen. Kenneth Buzbee will maintain office hours at his full-time Carbondale headquarters, 306 W. Main, in addition to making scheduled visits to area towns while the General Assembly is not in session.

Buzbee's Carbondale office operates on a five-day per week schedule.

He will be at the Carterville City Hall, 9:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. Friday; Pickneyville, Perry County Court House, 9 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Tuesday, and Sparta City Hall, 1 to 5 p.m., Tuesday.

Council approves art center funding grant

By Kathleen Takemoto
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The city council has approved a $24,000 block grant contingency fund for an arts and crafts center.

The council approved the funding Monday night on a recommendation from the Citizens Community Development Steering Committee.

The Community Development staff previously had recommended the council approve funding of the project at a formal meeting on June 16. The staff had recommended that the Northeast Community Development Congress not be funded from Community Development monies.

The council referred both recommendations to the steering committee for review. The committee did not take any action to recommend funding for the Northeast Congress, but the council voted to deny funding to the congress.

City Manager Carroll J. Fry will negotiate with the Attucks Board of Governors to operate the Arts and Crafts project.

In other action Monday night, the council approved an ordinance creating a Community Development Loan and Grant Review Board.

The board, which will consist of seven people with business or financial backgrounds, will review all requests for Community Development Block Grant loans or grants, according to the ordinance.

The board will make advisory recommendations to the director of Community Development, the city manager.

The council also approved a resolution adopting the Affirmative Action Program for Carbondale.

According to the resolution, the program "would aid in the eradication of discrimination within the city of Carbondale."

The program was prepared by Cleveland Matthews, Affirmative Action Officer for the city.

The council passed a resolution requesting Gov. Dan Walker and the Illinois Secretary of Transportation to aid Carbondale in establishing the east-west couple between Walnut Street and Illinois 13.

The council approved an amendment to the city zoning ordinance.

The amendment changes the minimum yard requirements of the existing ordinance.

The minimum front yard depth for a low density residential area ranges between 25 and 30 feet, or 20 per cent of the lot depth, whichever is less, according to the amended ordinance.

The minimum front yard depth for a medium density residence is 25 feet or 20 per cent of lot depth, whichever is less.

The minimum side yard width for general agricultural or rural residential area is 10 per cent of the lot width on each side, but not less than 15 feet.

Minimum side yard width for low density residential areas is 10 per cent of lot width on each side, but not less than eight feet.

The minimum rear yard depth for general agriculture and rural residential areas is 30 feet. The minimum rear yard depth for low density residential areas is 15 feet. Fry presented a report, which included monthly reports from the planning department, division of Streets and Sanitation, Utility Division Central Lab and the Code Enforcement Division.

Mayor Neal Bickert named James Hagler to the Carbondale Electrical Commission.

Speech time changes for Illinois treasurer

The time has been changed for State Treasurer Alan J. Dixon to speak for the Robert A. Taft Institute of Government seminar. Dixon will speak at 7 p.m., July 16, in the Eastmoore Room of Trueblood Hall, instead of the originally scheduled time of 1 p.m.

Other political leaders appearing at the seminar include:

—Dr. Bob C. Riley, former governor of Arkansas, 9 a.m., Monday.

—James R. Thompson, U.S. District Attorney for Northern Illinois, 1 p.m., Tuesday.

Neil Hartigan, Lt. Governor of Illinois, 10:30 a.m., July 16.

All talks will be given in the Eastmoore Room and are open to the public.

Stone Age living taught

SPokane, Wash. (AP)—When Prof. Jerry O'Neal announced he was going to teach "Stone Age Survival," the reaction from other instructors was: "You're going to teach a course in beating stones together?"

"I was pretty well equipped to talk to my students in an academic sense about hand axes and points, said O'Neal about his graduate studies at the University of Montana. "But then it occurred to me that I really didn't know what they were."

The result, says O'Neal, 32, is a five-credit course at Spokane Falls Community College. It allows students to construct a shelter, make reproductions of stone tools and prepare animal skins.

Stones' Memphis concert excites audience

By Douglas Graham
Student Writer
There was little doubt in the 50,000 persons leaving Memphis Memorial Stadium that the rock group they had just witnessed was truly a legend in its own time. Surviving the 95-degree heat, the intense sunlight and the previous seven hours of viewing three bands, the Independence Day audience exploded as the legend took to the stage. It had been three years since their last American tour and the Rolling Stones were going to make up for lost time.

With the beginning of a taped Oriental ballad, the Stones prepared to launch into their musical satire. Dressed drag, in an orange jumpsuit and holding a Chinese umbrella, Mick Jagger, lead singer and stage actor, immediately assaulted the audience as lead guitarist Keith Richards banged the downbeat for "Honkey Tonk Woman."

A Review

The audience, which came from all over the country, immediately left its inhibitions at the door, along with the heat, as the group once billed, "the greatest rock and roll group in the world," stunned it with hard hitting rock and roll.

Guitarist Mick Taylor quit the Stones just before the tour, but the group was able to get Ron Wood, of Faces, to step in for the tour. Along with Jagger and Richard were bassist Bill Wyman and drummer Charlie Watts, both original Stone members. Also joining the Stones were Billy Preston on keyboards and Olie Brown on percussion.

After "Honkey Tonk Woman," the Stones continued pouring out their classics. "Street Fighting Man," "You Can't Always Get What You Want," "Get off My Cloud," and "Gimme Shelter" brought the eager crowd to its feet, as Jagger jumped, danced and rolled on the stage.

One could feel the highly intensive energy flowing from the Stones and the constant sexual assaults by Jagger. Thrusting his lower torso, Jagger wailed out "Ain't Too Proud To Beg," "If You Can't Rock Me," and the title song from the album, "It's Only Rock and Roll."

After Richards' singing debut of "Happy," Jagger slowed down things with the mellow sounds of "Angie" and "Wild Horses." The notes of Richards' and Woods' guitars flowed with the constant beat of Charlie's drums. It was Jagger, now naked from the waist up, who put the icing on the sound.

Between the firecrackers and the aerial rockets, the Stones continued to play without delay. Several firecrackers exploded below the stage, but only the dirt was moved.

Jagger proceeded to take off his outer layer of trousers, leaving on nothing more than pajama bottoms. With his belt in hand, he slashed the silver-studded leather against the stage while Charlie hit every downbeat on "Midnight Rambler." With Richards' beginning bars of "Jumping Jack Flash," the crowd immediately responded with wild screams. Jagger poured it on with hopping, skipping and jumping from one end of the stage to the other. He seduced the audience into sheer ecstasy as he threw kisses and shouted, "Jumping Jack Flash is a gas, gas, gas," to spur the few timid ones sitting down to rise to their feet.

The 10-foot wire fence in front of the 15-foot stage protected the Stones from an over-zealous assault by the audience. During their 1969 U.S. tour, the group had no such protection and their audiences' zeal was sometimes successful.

As the Stones departed from the stage, they left behind a weird, indescribable sensation. It's hard to believe that the Rolling Stones—who outlasted the Beatles, the Vietnam War, and many political and social changes—are still together.

Their Memphis performance probably will follow suit for the 50,000 concert-goers who met for just a few hours in the Stones' seemingly endless span of time.

King and I

Rodgers and Hammerstein's, "The King and I," will be presented by the Summer Playhouse '75. The musical will run for the next two weekends, July 11, 12, 13, and 18, 19, 20. "The King and I" follows the adventures of Anna Leonowens (Donna Sontag) in her efforts to tutor the children of the King of Siam (Frank Caltabiano). Tickets are on sale at the University Box Office in the Communications building and the Student Center Information Desk.

Local artist exhibits work in Springfield

One of the artists whose work is being exhibited in the Governor's Mansion in Springfield, is Carolyn Gassan Plochman, a Carbondale artist and former art teacher at SIU. Her painting, "Dream Sequence," will remain on display until May, 1976. Her work has been widely exhibited including presentation in more than a dozen one-man shows in the Midwest.

Oil companies explain why

Gasoline prices up, operators unhappy

By Ken Temkin
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Gasoline prices are on the rise again and area service station operators are not pleased with the situation.

A check with local service stations shows a price increase of between 1.4 and 3.0 cents per gallon on July 1, with a majority of service stations responding with an increase of three cents.

The latest price hike has prompted one station owner to reconsider his future in the business.

"For the first time in quite a number of years I am seriously considering getting out of the business," said an owner who wished to remain unnamed.

"These prices are getting a little out of hand. It's costing me in gas and money to stay in the business," he said.

One station owner explained that a three tenths of a cent sales tax accounts for the three cent rise in the price of gasoline. "That tax," he said, "I am not passing on to my customers. I'm absorbing it."

Another station owner who has raised his prices only 1.4 cents says he is absorbing the losses from the sales tax in the hope that sales will be better without the boost. "I hope I can make up the loss in the tax with better sales," he said. "If it doesn't work out in two weeks I'll add the tax."

Public relations representatives for the Federal Energy Administration (FEA), the federal energy regulatory agency in St. Louis, Chicago and Kansas City were unavailable for comment about the price increases Tuesday afternoon. Representatives of two of the major oil companies did comment.

Dave Ebshear, a spokesman for Standard of Indiana, said that the reasons for recent price increases fall into three major categories.

Ebshear said that increases in cost of crude oil production, import tax and entitlement programs have forced many of the major oil companies to petition to the FEA for the three cent per gallon price increase.

Entitlement programs as explained by Ebshear are subsidies paid to fellow oil companies as reimbursement for less profitable oil production.

Service continues during CIPS strike

By Kathleen Takemoto
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Despite a continuing strike by the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers Local 702, the Central Illinois Public Service Co. (CIPS) is "maintaining service to Carbondale and the University," said C.S. Heaton, CIPS division manager.

The 875-member union struck the CIPS Co. Monday after rejecting a contract last week. CIPS reported that 14 Carbondale employees are involved in the strike.

Heaton said supervisory personnel are maintaining services, although "not of the quality that our customers are accustomed to."

Heaton said he did not know the status of negotiations between the union and the utility company because he had not been able to contact the Springfield office.

He said there have been no meetings since June 30, when the two-year contract expired.

J. Harvey Fryer, Local 702 business manager, said union members were dissatisfied with the proposed wage and fringe benefit increases offered in the new contract, as well as changes in "long-established" work rules.

Members of the International Union of Operating Engineers Locals 591 and 148 were ordered back to work Monday by a federal judge. The two locals had been honoring the strike by the electrical workers against CIPS.

The back-to-work order had been requested by CIPS.

Company, Lyn Johnson, told the Daily Egyptian that Shell pays the largest subsidies for entitlement than any of the oil companies and that the largest recipients of entitlement payments are the Phillips, Texaco, Ashland, and Arco-oil companies.

Johnson said that the average barrel of Shell oil contains 76 per cent "old" oil, 7 per cent "new" oil and 17 per cent unclassified by Shell as either "old" or "new."

Johnson said that oil companies may ask the FEA for price increases every 30 days but she doesn't expect the major oil producing companies to ask for another price increase for the first of August.

When Ebshear was asked what his recourse is to people who accuse the oil companies of excessive profits he replied, "Sure and oil companies' profits are high. (Oil company profits have to be high because we are always reinvesting those profits to try and find new domestic sources of oil."

"Our profits are really going into the ground."

Many jobs available for liberal arts grads

"We expected an incredible unemployment rate," Walsh said. "Instead we saw that everyone was doing pretty well."

A pamphlet prepared by Walsh noted the following findings: First, the overall unemployment rate for the graduates was 7.5 per cent. It ranged from 12.5 per cent for unmarried males to 2 per cent for married males. During the period of the survey, the national unemployment rate went from 7.1 per cent in December, 1974, to over 8 per cent in early 1975.

The national rate for men aged 20 to 24 (the group into which male graduates fell) was just over 11 per cent in December, 1974. The national rate for females in the same age group was an even higher 12.7 per cent. For their age group, Walsh reported liberal arts graduates showed a satisfactory rate of employment. Almost 86 per cent of the graduates were in the labor force.

Second, according to the report, graduates had an encouraging variety of careers. A list of 250 job titles was compiled in the course of the study, dispelling the myth that a job has to be related to a student's major.

Third, the study showed that graduates had a high level of employment. More than half were earning over $10,000 a year, and about three-fourths listed their jobs as having career potential.

Finally, Walsh found the major difficulty facing liberal arts graduates seemed to be the long and often frustrating process of finding satisfactory employment, not the lack of satisfactory employment.

According to the study, there were 736 liberal arts graduates in 1972. A questionnaire was mailed to each of the 774 graduates for whom United States addresses were available. There were 375 respondents, 246 men and 129 women. Walsh said this 60.8 per cent response rate could be considered very good.

Nearly half of all the respondents said their jobs were either directly or somewhat related to their major fields of study, according to the report. About one-third said their jobs were not related to majors. More than three-fourths of the graduates said they were satisfied with their jobs and almost half said their jobs had definite career potential.

The most surprising feature of the study, Walsh said, was the wide variety of jobs that liberal arts graduates held. As Walsh stated in his pamphlet, the assumption that a liberal arts major is only suitable for a narrow range of occupations is not substantiated. The range of occupations which liberal arts graduates have entered shows that it is virtually impossible to predict careers from college majors.

For example, the report listed a Delta Airline stewardess earning more than $15,000 a year. Her college major was English. A history major was earning $10,000-13,000 a year as an electrician and said his job had definite career potential. The owner of a masonry firm, a history major, listed his yearly salary as above $15,000. A political science major was making up to $13,000 a year as a meter reader.

In evaluating the liberal arts degree, 43.3 per cent of the graduates said if they had it to do over again, they would take the same major, or another liberal arts major. A little over one-fourth of the graduates said they would take a liberal arts major with job-related courses.

Walsh says the survey did not gloss over the problems that liberal arts graduates faced, however. For example, just over 75 per cent of the graduates said that the College of Liberal Arts should pay more attention to career preparation in its academic programs.

When given a list of suggestions and asked to check those which would be most helpful to current students, graduates checked "a willingness to consider a wider range of careers" most often (49.3 per cent).

Almost equally important were "a better idea of what they would like to do" (45.9 per cent) and "more marketable skills" (45.9 per cent). Although the suggestions varied, three-fourths of the graduates thought that some sort of emphasis on career preparation is important if liberal arts students are to leave college adequately prepared for the working world.

Another problem that the survey presented was the differential opportunities and rewards for men and women graduates. First, fewer women than men were studying for advanced degrees. There were 25 men enrolled in graduate school and only 15 women; there were 23 men enrolled in professional school (law, medicine, business administration or theology), but no women.

Second, as the wage bracket increased, the percentage of women in that bracket decreased. In the $8,000-9,999 yearly wage scale, 31.9 per cent were women graduates and 23.5 per cent were men. But in the $10,000-12,999 bracket, 24.2 per cent were females and 37.6 per cent were men. There were twice as many men making $13,000-15,000 yearly and three times as many making $15,000 and above.

Both Shelby and Walsh found it disturbing that no women had entered professional school.

"It's a problem that needs attention," Walsh said, "but I think advisement will make women more aware of opportunities. More awareness in advisement is our long-range goal. You can't tell them (women students) what to do, but you can say 'You don't have to major in a certain field.'"

Police report damage to bar

A local bar was damaged early Monday evening when a patron threw a rock through a window, police said.

Police said John A. Hamilton, 30, of Carbondale was arrested and charged with damage to property when the owner of Gatsby's bar, 608 S. Illinois Avenue, filed a complaint against him for throwing a rock through the bar's window. Hamilton is being held in the city jail pending bond.

SIU camper says teamwork valuable

Though it may look like a stick up, Jem Hudgins (far left) and fellow campers are actually doing calisthenics at the SIU Basketball Camp at the Arena.

Approximately 70 boys in grades 6 through 12 worked out Tuesday at the camp directed by SIU basketball coach Paul Lambert. (Staff photo by Carl Wagner)

By Ken Johnson
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

Mr. Hudgins, what do the people in the stands need to know about basketball?

"They need to know that it's hard to run the whole game and shoot against players who are better than you are. You have to stay in the game and move. You can't let better players get behind you. You can't loaf—because, if they get behind you, they might score."

But, Mr. Hudgins, what if you are the better player?

"I think you should take advantage of this and help your team by scoring against the poor player—this means you still have to run the whole game."

That's the philosophy of 12-year-old Jem Hudgins of Route 2, Lakewood, Murphysboro, about basketball training, competition and what basketball means to him, personally. And that helps explain why he's among the 70 boys, fifth to 12th graders, in the SIU Basketball Camp.

"Hudgins has some skill and talent. He's a good ball player," said Paul Lambert, SIU basketball coach and camp director in introducing Hudgins. Hudgins, who played with the Globe Trotters, Salukis and Panthers in third, fourth and fifth grades at Carbondale's Brush School, wants to play at guard for the Lincoln Junior High School next season. He said he's played basketball for the past five years and this is his second season at the SIU camp.

"Even though I'm smaller than most players," said the 5-foot tall hopeful, "I try to keep up with the big guys. I feel I'm pretty good at shooting and I try to run a mile everyday to keep in shape."

Hudgins said playing college ball in Texas or California is his ambition because, "You always hear about their teams and I'd like to play for a well-known team."

Playing professional ball with the New York Knicks, Hudgins' favorite team, would suit him well, he says. He said he is looking forward to the Knicks' star, Walt Frazier, visiting the SIU camp next week.

"I like the way his teamwork goes—he doesn't get mad; he stays cool," the camp veteran said.

According to Hudgins's ideas about the sport, basketball is team oriented first and individual oriented second.

"Before every game," Hudgins related, "I think...if we lose this game, we might not be chosen to be the best so we've got to win."

"I always try to make our team the best. I always try to put forth my best effort and tell the team to put forth theirs."

"I try not to yell at my teammates when they make mistakes," said the competitor. "I remind myself that I make mistakes, too. So I don't yell at them much."

"You have to let the other team members shoot the ball as much as you do and work together on passing and defense," the camper explained.

That's what Hudgins likes best about the SIU camp—teamwork. He said coach Lambert teaches players how to work together in team drills everyday during the two-week session.

He said he also picked up between six and eight points per game when he learned to keep his forearm straight in line with his shoulder when shooting jump shots.

"I like the way the coaches help you with individual problems," Hudgins said of the six member staff.

"Basketball should be continued!"

Hudgins emphasized when asked about the intrinsic worth of the multi-million dollar institution.

"But," he concluded, "salaries should be cut down 50 per cent because people have too many luxuries."

"The country could use the money for oil because the country needs that more," Hudgins said.

Rain expected on first day of British Open

CARNOUSTIE, Scotland (AP) — The world's top golf stars had their last practice for the British Open Golf Championship on the sun-scorched, ultra-dry Carnoustie course Tuesday—and weather experts predicted the honeymoon is over.

Thundershowers were forecast for Wednesday, when the $165,000 four-day tournament is scheduled to start. The stars will be shooting for a first prize of $16,500.

The ball has been bouncing and running like crazy on the long, slate-hard fairways of the 7,065-yard, par 36-36-72 links these last few days. Big-hitting Jack Nicklaus, rated a strong favorite with Britain's legal bookmakers, played four practice rounds in almost windless conditions and had an incredible 264 total-24 under par.

Other leading players have forecast a winning score of 280 or less.

But 44-year-old veteran Gene Littler finished a three-over-par 75 in a practice round Tuesday and said:

"I wish these guys would stop talking about scores of 280 and I wish Jack would quit shooting 24 under par. I don't think he or anybody else will shoot anywhere near 280 in the tournament itself."

Hrabosky sees benefits in not getting All-Star nod

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Al Hrabosky, baseball's Mad Hungarian on the diamond, has taken a bitter-sweet attitude off it toward National League All-Star pitching selections.

The 25-year-old Hrabosky, the St. Louis Cardinals' ace who leads National League relievers in saves, said Tuesday he even sees hidden benefits in his omission from a staff named by Los Angeles Dodgers Manager Walter Alston.

"Look at it this way. This will give us one more reason to beat L.A.," Hrabosky suggested after the Dodgers' Mike Marshall and Philadelphia left-hander Tug McGraw were chosen ahead of him for the National League All-Star team.

"But I guess you can't fault Alston because Marshall was the Cy Young Award winner last year," Hrabosky mused.

"And it's no disgrace to have McGraw picked ahead of you."

Comments from other Cardinals ranged from a "ludicrous" label attached to the omission by catcher Ted Simmons to resignation on the part of front office official Bob Kennedy.

"It's a joke leaving him off the team," Kennedy, the Cards' director of player personnel, said in respect to Hrabosky's qualifications for All-Star status, a 1.97 earned run average in 41 innings and an accumulation of 14 saves.

"Well, anyway," Kennedy added, "at least Al will have had three days of rest before we resume our schedule."

The 5-foot-11 Hrabosky, the Cardinals believe, has ranked as the NL's premier reliever since bursting into prominence at midseason last year with his self-psyching mound rituals and blazing fast ball.

"They're going to let the greens get hard and we're certain to get some wind. And then look out."

The bookmakers made Nicklaus a 7-2 favorite. Other odds put Johnny Miller the second choice at 8-10 followed by defending champion Gary Player of South Africa at 10-1, Tom Weiskopf at 12-1 and Hale Irwin at 14-1.

Nicklaus, who won this pretigious tourney in 1966 and 1970, has found the dry course to his liking and has been in great form. "I have holed every putt I have looked at," he said.

The 6:30 p.m. games include the Old Northwest vs Rowdys on Field 3; Scoff n' Duck vs Lappers on Field 4; the Bandits vs Howling Commandos on Field 5; Aggies vs AKL Vultures on Field 6 and Zeppelin vs Conquest on Field 7.
